

Saving Lives

By Muhammad Qassim Raza

When everyone is bound at home,
Busy writing on their Chrome
Staying home has become the cure,
When air is no more pure
Adults are watching the news,
Children are brushing off their Monday blues
No school to go,
No friends to show
Everyone is bored in every place,
No more cats to go and chase
You cannot go to malls,
Or stroll to the waterfalls
The virus is scaring,
Making our spines go shivering
Video calls with grandparents and friends,
Poor are busy in meeting ends
They have to conquer with their might,
Show others how to ignite the light
Then, immunity was the greatest power,
Do not forget to smell the flower
You are requested to wear a mask,
Something, nobody has ever asked
Not allowed to travel on bus or car,
If you do, do not go far
Follow the rules and precaution,
Wash your hands and apply lotion

In these troubled days,
Understanding is the only way
I know you are afraid,
But it will eventually fade
There, some are not sitting indoors,
They are out with important chores
They are continuously saving lives,
Defeating the attacks of invisible knives
We call them doctors at duty,
Wearing the uniform of humanity
They only care for the people,
Fighting with Covid-19 evil
They are the true warriors,
Saving lives like soldiers
Treating sick patients every day,
Measures taken to keep Covid away
Needles, medications, and vaccinations,
They have not taken a single vacation
Always out on duty day and night,
Determined, ready to fight
Heroes do not always wear a cape,
Sometimes an action all it takes
Our hearts swell and seek pride in them,
Come on you all, salute to them!
